Mojave Water Agency begins community workshop series

Apple Valley, CA — Wondering where all that rainwater went after the recent storms drenched the High Desert? Principal Hydrogeologist Tony Winkel has the answers and will share them at Mojave Water Agency's first community event of the year.

Formerly known as the "ABCs of Water" the series has been updated as the "Wonders of Water" for 2023 and is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 31 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. in the boardroom at the Agency headquarters, 13846 Conference Center Drive in Apple Valley.

All of the sessions are free and designed to educate the public about the local water supply, science, conservation, or sustainability. Topics will range from family friendly presentations and activities to intermediate level scientific studies.

This month's workshop will give attendees insight on the role recent storms played in raising the water levels of the Mojave River, our ground water basins, and wells.

Wonders of Water will include free refreshments. Registration is required and space is limited. Register online at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/H5LX5LK> or by contacting Kenny Sousa at (760) 946-7038 or by email at ksousa@mojavewater.org.
